

Community Nursery Update – Flora Force

The joint Norfolk Island Regional Council and Parks, community nursery project 'Flora Force' has got off to a great start! In just a few short months about 1500 plants have been propagated & potted, destined to revegetate habitat across the island.

Many hands truly do make light work, with 60 volunteer hours committed so far. We are grateful for everyone who has been involved!

Knowledge sharing and distribution is a core value of this project. So we encourage anyone with previous native plant propagation experience to come along to share, and those learning to come and ask questions!

We are currently gathering on every alternate Friday morning 9-11am at the National Park Nursery. Check in with me (56611) or Sara (55089) if you want to be a part of this exciting project.
